General rules

Most football markets, except halftime/first-half markets, overtime, and penalty shootouts, settle on regular time plus injury/stoppage time. Unless stated for a specific market, overtime and penalties do not count. “Regular 90 minutes” includes stoppage time but excludes extra time, a shootout, and golden goal. If a match is interrupted and resumes within 48 hours of kickoff, open bets settle on the final result; otherwise undecided bets are void. The operator reserves the right to void bets for markets left open after goals, red/yellow-red cards, or penalties; missing/incorrect red-card data; match time off by over five minutes; incorrect scores; incorrect team names/category; or VAR-related score, card, corner, or penalty changes.

Plain English: check the period named by the market. Full-time usually means 90 minutes plus stoppage time, not extra time or penalties. The page allows bets to stand when an interrupted game resumes within 48 hours.

Corners

Only corners actually taken count. A corner awarded but not taken does not. Timing is when the corner is taken, rather than awarded or timestamped by a third-party feed.

Bookings

A yellow card counts as 1 card; a red or yellow-red counts as 2. The second yellow producing a yellow-red is not counted separately, so one player can cause no more than 3 cards. For booking points, yellow = 10 and red/yellow-red = 25; the second yellow is not counted separately, so a player can cause at most 35 points. Cards shown during regular time count; post-match cards do not. Cards shown at halftime count in the second half. Cards to non-players, including substituted players, managers, and bench players, do not count.

Plain English: booking counts and booking points use different scales. Check which kind of market the selection names.

Football statistics

Shots, shots on target, saves, fouls, throw-ins, goal kicks, offsides, and woodwork hits are settled exclusively from Opta data. Opta definitions may differ from those used by leagues or governing bodies.

Player markets

A player market is normally valid if the selected player participates, whether as starter or substitute, regardless of time played. If they do not participate, bets are void. Exception: Player Shots on Goal, Player H2H, Player Shots, Player Assists, Player Tackles, Player Passes, and Player To Be Carded, including overtime versions, are void if the player does not start.

Anytime goalscorer and player to score X or more

Own goals do not count. Players who took part since kickoff or the previous goal are runners. If an unlisted player scores, bets on listed players stand. Non-fielders and unused substitutes are void. Settlement uses TV insert and Press Association statistics unless clearly wrong.

First goalscorer

Own goals are ignored. Participants since kickoff or the previous goal are runners; current participants are listed. If an unlisted player scores, listed-player bets stand. Non-fielders and unused substitutes are void. A late substitute entering after the first goal is also void. Settlement uses TV and Press Association statistics unless clearly wrong.

Player assists

An assist is the player's final contribution, such as a pass, shot, or other touch, leading to a teammate's goal. It can be excluded if an opponent deflection materially changes the ball's path and the recipient was unlikely to receive it otherwise. No assist for an own goal, penalty, direct corner goal, or direct free-kick goal.

Player goals

Counts goals by the player into the opponent's net. A deflection may be ruled an own goal and not credited to the shooter.

Player total shots

A shot is a clear scoring attempt, whether on/off target, blocked, saved, or hitting the frame. Blocks count. Set pieces, crosses, or flick-ons without clear intent to score do not count unless they directly produce a goal. Any legal body part may be used.

Player total shots on goal

Counts a direct goal or a clear attempt that would have scored but for a goalkeeper save or a last-man stop when the goalkeeper could not save it. A frame-hit that goes in counts; a frame-hit that stays out does not. Blocks other than a last-man stop do not count. Non-shooting set pieces, crosses, and flick-ons do not count unless they score directly. Any legal body part may be used.

Player total passes

Counts attempted passes intended for a teammate, successful or not. Open-play passes and short-played goal kicks, free kicks, and corners count. Crosses, throw-ins, and goalkeeper throws do not.

Player total tackles

A successful ground challenge connecting with the ball and taking it from a player in possession counts, regardless of who gets possession or whether the ball goes out. Missed tackles, aerial duels, fouls, and interceptions do not.

Player saves

Predict the goalkeeper's total saves. A save is recorded when the goalkeeper intercepts or stops a shot on target.

Posts and crossbars

A shot hitting the post or crossbar and then going in counts as a goal, not woodwork.

Interval markets

Goal time follows the TV announcement if available, otherwise the match clock; a goal is timed as the ball crosses the line. Corners are timed when taken, cards when shown, and offsides and penalties when the referee decides. These rules also apply to VAR situations. A penalty awarded but not taken does not count. Events during added time count in intervals 41-45, 31-40, and 31-45 for the named 5/10/15-minute interval markets.

Next scoring type

Freekick: scored directly from a free kick or corner, including a deflection if the taker receives credit. Penalty: scored directly, not from a rebound after a miss. Own goal: officially declared an own goal. Header: scorer's last touch is with the head. Shot: scored with another body part and not another type. No Goal: no goal occurs.

Match result and goals

1X2 and early-lead markets

1X2 means home win (1), draw (X), or away win (2). 1UP pays a selected team as soon as it takes a one-goal lead; later score does not matter after settlement. A draw selection settles on full-time result and has the same odds as ordinary 1X2. 2UP pays when a team leads by two; if abandoned after that lead, that selection wins. “Never Down” requires the selected team to win without ever trailing.

Any Team 3UP, Home/Away Team 3UP, Home/Away Team 2UP, and Home/Away Team 1UP ask whether the named team or either team reaches that lead.

Double chance, draw no bet, and handicaps

Double Chance combines two 1X2 outcomes: 1X (home/draw), X2 (draw/away), or 12 (either team wins). Double Chance 1UP pays early if the named team takes the lead; otherwise it settles as ordinary double chance. Draw No Bet: choose the winner, with a draw voiding the bet. The page also lists Home No Bet and Away No Bet; its wording is unusual, so follow the actual ticket selection.

Handicap: predict the winner after applying the displayed line to the regular-time result. Asian Handicap uses quarter, half, and whole-goal lines. A quarter line can produce a win, loss, half-win, or half-loss, with the other half stake returned; half-goal lines resolve win/loss; whole-goal lines can also push/void.

Handicap settlement table

The negative handicap side gives goals and must overcome the line. The positive side receives a virtual head start. “Void” returns stake. “Half win” or “Half lose” applies to half the stake; the other half is returned. The paired halves show opposite sides of the same line.

Over/Under and goal totals

Over/Under predicts whether total regular-time goals finish above or below a line. Half-goal lines cannot push; whole-goal lines can push (void); quarter lines split stake across adjacent half-lines. Home/Away Team Over/Under counts only that team's goals. EarlyGoals lines may settle early when the specified goal threshold arrives; otherwise they become ordinary over/under bets. GG/NG predicts whether both teams score (Yes/GG) or at least one does not (No/NG).

Over/Under settlement table

The total-goal column gives the outcome; Over and Under are opposing selections. Half wins/losses apply to half the stake, with the rest returned; void returns the full stake. This is settlement guidance, not odds or a payout quote.

Other match and goal markets

The source also defines To Qualify, Exact Goals, Will There Be Overtime, Goal Range, Odd/Even (zero is even), Winning Margin, Teams to Score, 1X2 & GG/NG, Over/Under & GG/NG, 1X2 & Over/Under, first/second-half GG/NG, Nth Goalscorer, Correct Score, Half Time/Full Time, Winning Method, combined Double Chance markets, Next/Last Goal, numbered-goal and interval markets, overtime 1X2/goals/handicap/correct score, and penalty-shootout winning margin, over/under, exact goals, odd/even, numbered penalties/goals, team totals, correct score, winner, and winner-plus-total-goals.

Further listed markets include home/away exact goals, odd/even, clean sheet, last goalscorer, multigoals, team multigoals, multiscores, half multigoals, scoring in both halves, both-halves over/under, first/second-half team totals, exact totals, odd/even, GG/NG, clean sheets, second-half numbered goal, overtime first-half markets, combined half-time/full-time scores, win both/either half, highest-scoring half, half-specific double chance, draw-no-bet, handicap, over/under, and team-to-win-to-nil.

Combined “Team or” markets pair a named result with over/under, GG/NG, or any clean sheet. Goal Bounds covers total or named-team goal ranges. One-minute interval over/under markets cover goals, corners, bookings, offsides, and penalties. The market title identifies the statistic, team, period, interval, or combination to predict.

Booking markets

The page lists Booking 1X2, Nth Booking, Total Booking Points, Total Bookings, home/away team booking totals, exact booking counts, booking-point range, and sending-off markets, including first-half and 5/10/15-minute interval variants. Counts use yellow = 1 and red/yellow-red = 2; booking points use yellow = 10 and red/yellow-red = 25. The second yellow is not separately counted.

Corner markets

The page lists Corners 1X2, Nth/Last Corner, Corner Handicap, total and home/away over/under, total and team corner ranges, and odd/even corners (zero is even), plus first-half and 5/10/15-minute interval variants. Race to X Corners asks which team reaches the specified count first, for the full match or first half.
